Foreword

FROM THE MINISTER PRESIDENT OF BAVARIA

Dr. Markus Söder, MdL
Minister President of Bavaria, Federal Republic of Germany

To you, your family, and all your employees, my warmest congratulations on your company's 100th anniversary! This year is the perfect occasion to look back with pride on the remarkable journey of your business. It is truly a success story!

Since its founding in 1925, the BECK family enterprise has grown into a global player in the distribution of electronic components. While continuously opening up to new markets, it has always remained firmly rooted in its Franconian home. Both the Nuremberg Metropolitan Region and the town of Emskirchen have benefited greatly from the valuable economic contributions of your company. This reflects not only entrepreneurial skill but also a strong spirit of innovation. The fact that BECK has now thrived for a century is a testament to the unique strength of Bavaria's family-owned businesses. They stand for solidarity, preserve experience and expertise across generations, and focus on sustainable investment. These qualities make them a true pillar of stability, growth, and prosperity. And in all of this, they can count on the State of Bavaria to provide the best possible conditions for their important work – today and in the future. Wishing you a wonderful anniversary celebration and continued success in the years to come.

Foreword

FROM THE MAYOR OF THE CITY OF NUREMBERG

With great pride, you can look back on 100 years of BECK. On this anniversary, I extend my warmest congratulations to you and all your employees and thank you for your long-standing commitment to Nuremberg as a business location.

Nuremberg owes its status as a leading electronics hub in Germany in part to family-owned businesses like BECK Elektronik, where heritage meets innovation.

As an independent, globally active family business now in its fourth generation and a worldwide leader in electronic components, BECK Elektronik stands for progress and growth. You create high-quality training opportunities and jobs, contribute to prosperity, and have repeatedly demonstrated remarkable adaptability and innovative strength throughout your company's long history. What's more, you continue to invest in Nuremberg as a business location – for example, through the renovation of your company building on Eltersdorfer Straße last year.

For the next 100 years, I wish you every success and all the very best! I very much hope that you will remain loyal to Nuremberg as your home base.

BECK Group

OUR PHILOSOPHY

Since 1925, the BECK Group has stood for technical excellence, reliability, and entrepreneurial foresight. With a dedicated team of valued employees and a network of specialized companies, BECK today offers far more than distribution alone: its strength lies in design-in, logistics support, supply chain management, and a consistent commitment to quality.

Together, the BECK Group represents solutions that connect across borders. It develops tailored concepts for its customers, supports them throughout every stage of their projects, and builds on long-term partnerships, innovative thinking, and communication on equal footing. For a century, the BECK Group has united tradition with the future.

The Early Years

BECK TO THE ROOTS

From sales representation to specialized distributor – the beginnings with Gustav Beck.

In 1925, with a keen sense for both technology and the market, Gustav Beck founded an industrial sales agency in Nuremberg – a bold move in uncertain times. The decades that followed demanded pioneering spirit, adaptability, and entrepreneurial acumen.

Amid war, post-war reconstruction, and the economic boom, the company grew, constantly reinventing itself while staying true to its core values. Gustav Beck could never have imagined that his business would one day evolve into an internationally active distributor – and that by 2025, BECK Elektronik would be the world's oldest family-owned distributor of electronic components.

WHAT DRIVES US IS OUR CONNECTION TO CUSTOMERS AND OUR PASSION FOR TECHNOLOGY.

 Theodor Beck

The story of BECK begins with Gustav Beck. Gustav Beck was born on July 26, 1896, in Tönning an der Eider. The son of a locomotive driver, he grew up under difficult circumstances and became an orphan at the age of just four. These hardships shaped him, but they never stopped him from achieving great things. After serving as a sergeant in World War I, he founded his own company in Nuremberg in 1925. Initially trading in electrotechnical products such as insulators and synthetic resin items, he soon became the general representative for Rosenthal AG. Despite the turmoil of World War II and the near-total destruction of Nuremberg, Gustav Beck resumed business operations immediately after the war – at first even traveling by bicycle on damaged roads. Together with his son Theodor, he continued to expand the business. In the post-war years, the company supplied urgently needed products ranging from Resopal panels to coil springs and cables. Later, passive and active electronic components were added to the portfolio. By the 1950s, the sales agency was growing rapidly, counting companies like Siemens, Grundig, and Loewe Opta among its customers. A new era began in 1955 with graduate engineer Theodor Beck. He strategically focused the company on electronic components, established strong supplier relationships, and expanded the site multiple times through foresight and entrepreneurial courage. Under his leadership, BECK positioned itself as a reliable partner for the industry, committed to quality, trustworthiness, and customer proximity.

*WE ARE THE OLDEST

 Theodor Beck

Theodor Beck was not only a businessman but also an entrepreneur with principles – driving technological progress while staying true to traditional values. Together, Gustav and Theodor Beck laid the foundations for a company built on drive, reliability, and personal commitment.

Corporate Identity

COMMUNICATION IN TRANSITION

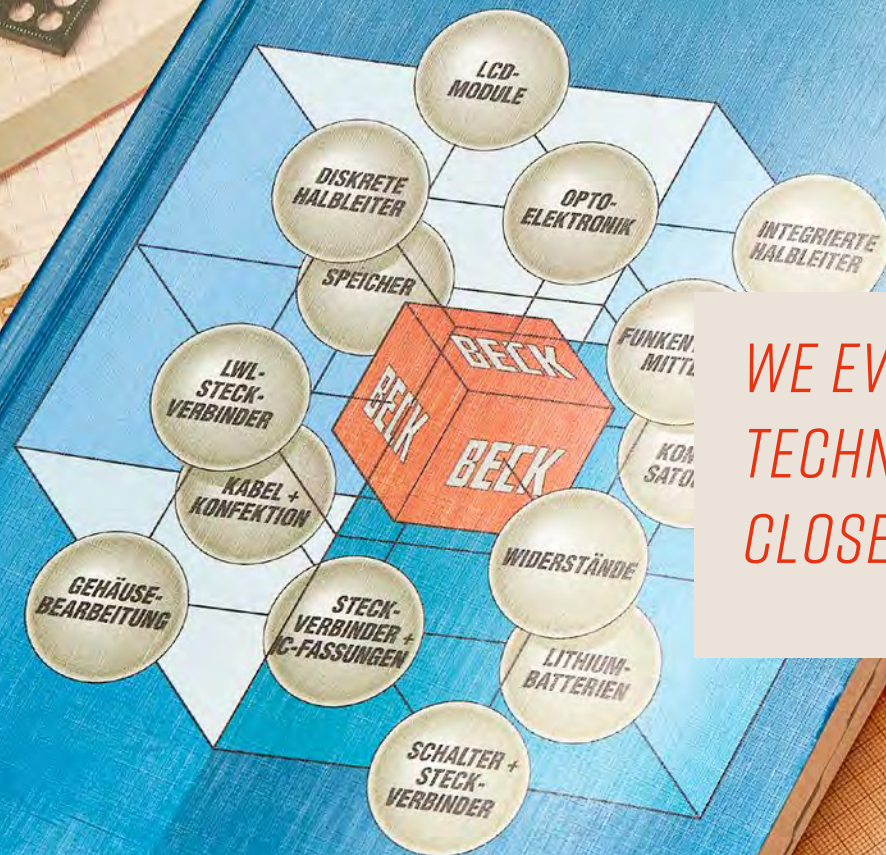

How BECK's brand identity, communication, and values have evolved over a century.

A company logo is more than just a symbol – it's part of its identity. Since 1925, the BECK Group's external image has continuously evolved, along with the way it communicates. From a traditional appearance to a modern brand: the development of the corporate design reflects not only technological change but also company values. Design reveals how a company thinks.

In the case of BECK: clear, reliable, future-oriented. The visual language of the BECK Group is both its public face and a mirror of its internal commitment to quality and continuity.

From a traditional Sales Agency to a modern Group of Companies: Over the past 100 years, BECK has evolved visually just as much as it has grown as a company. In its early years, the company operated under the name »Gustav Beck KG«. In the 1950s, a simple green logo conveyed technical reliability and down-to-earth values. Characteristic: four stylized lightning bolts symbolizing energy and innovation.

As the company grew, its appearance also changed. In the 1970s, a redesigned logo introduced orange accents and a clear design language – signaling the move into a new technological era. In the 1990s, typography was modernized and a striking red was defined, while the lightning bolt remained a consistent brand symbol.

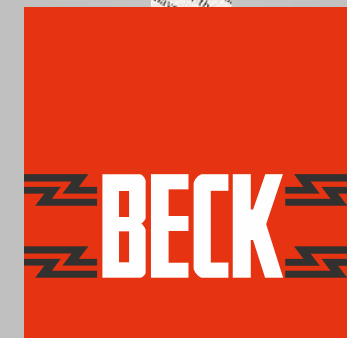

In 2019, BECK took a bold step into the modern age. A striking redesign created a fresh, powerful presence: two symmetrical lightning bolts now frame the BECK name with confidence and energy. This logo embodies what BECK stands for today: an internationally connected, future-oriented electronics company with strong roots and a clear identity.

But at BECK, corporate identity is more than just design. It is a clear commitment to authenticity, transparency, and dialogue. The way the company presents itself – whether in print, online, or at trade shows – reflects the following self-image: reliable, approachable, and professional. In an increasingly complex world, visual clarity creates trust.

The visual language acts as a common thread, linking history and present. It makes change tangible without ever denying BECK's origins.

The Family

BUSINESS

For 100 years, the Beck family and the BECK company have been linked together – now in their fourth generation.

Since its founding in 1925, the Beck Group has remained a true family-owned business. What began with Gustav Beck is today carried forward by Alexander, Patrick, Nicolai, Dr. Dieter, and Konstantin Beck – with entrepreneurial responsibility and personal commitment.

Across generations, the family has passed down not only business success but also a set of values: groundedness, openness, and a spirit of innovation. The family continues to be the unifying force behind every decision and action – proving that lasting success is, at its core, a family matter.

The Present

FROM NUREMBERG TO THE WORLD

From a sales agency to a global technology partner – the BECK group today.

In 1925, BECK began as a sales agency in Nuremberg. Today, it has grown into an international group of companies with diverse business areas. In the second generation, the regional sales agency became a wholesale partner for the entire DACH region. With the move toward internationalization, the third generation transformed BECK into a distributor that continues to supply customers worldwide. Throughout this journey, the values and reliability of a family-owned company have always remained at the core.

A new chapter began in the early 1980s: BECK transformed from a traditional trading company into a modern distributor. This change was driven not only by structural shifts in the electronics industry but also by entrepreneurial foresight and the courage to embrace innovation. While major European manufacturers withdrew from the market, BECK recognized the opportunities in international sourcing early on, establishing business relationships in Japan and later across Asia.

This move marked the start of a global growth path. The company continuously adapted to new market conditions. With an expanding product portfolio, BECK also enhanced its technical expertise: today, its range includes passive components, semiconductors, optoelectronics, displays, power electronics, and specialized LED technologies. Services cover everything from cable assembly and housing processing to logistics solutions and custom design-in solutions for components, displays and power modules. This diversity allows BECK to serve a wide array of industries, from automation and renewable energy to medical technology, smart metering, and e-mobility.

In the 1990s, the in-house manufacturing facility in northern Germany – the BKG – was systematically expanded. Here, tailor-made solutions in cable assembly and battery technology are developed for modern industrial applications.

Alongside technical expertise, close collaboration with customers and suppliers has been key to BECK's success. Design-in support, technical consulting, and custom logistics solutions are part of everyday operations. Long-term partnerships, digital interfaces such as EDI, and automated procurement processes exemplify the company's high standards for service and efficiency.

*... COMPONENTS BECAME

 Alexander Beck

A major milestone was the founding of BEC Ltd. Asia. Internationalization is now firmly embedded in BECK's identity. From Nuremberg, customers across Europe and beyond are served. Distribution structures that were once national are now global. Close supplier relationships, particularly in Asia, allow BECK to source high-quality components worldwide and respond flexibly to market demands. The BECK Elektronik Display GmbH was established early to meet the growing demand for innovative display systems. In the field of control technology and embedded applications, BECK increasingly acts as a system supplier that not only delivers but contributes to design and development.

As a fourth-generation family-owned company, BECK remains true to its values: quality, reliability, and partnership come first – today just as they did 100 years ago. In a world full of change, BECK provides its customers with stability, expertise, and a spirit of innovation.

Future & Responsibility

VISION, SUSTAINABILITY, DIGITALIZATION

Shaping the future means finding the right balance – between preservation and renewal, responsibility and progress.

For the fourth generation at BECK, this is both a commitment and a driving force. In a rapidly changing world, we rely on technological openness, sustainable thinking, and lasting values.

Digitalization, automation, and artificial intelligence are not a purpose of its own, but tools to strengthen what truly matters: people. For BECK, innovation means continuous development without losing sight of our roots. Because only those who unite heritage with future can provide lasting orientation and enable genuine progress.

»HUMAN
INTELLIGENCE«
REMAINS ESSENTIAL.

 Nicolai Beck

Patrick Beck, Konstantin Beck, Nicolai Beck

Leading a company in its fourth generation means more than passing on economic success. It means carrying responsibility: towards employees, customers, and society. For Patrick, Nicolai, and Konstantin Beck, this responsibility is part of their identity – shaped by a family business that has accompanied them since childhood. Together, they represent a new generation of entrepreneurs who unite tradition and change.

Their vision: BECK should remain a place where people enjoy working, where innovation and customer focus are lived every day, and where the spirit of reinvention is always alive.

” *SUCCESS IS BUILT ON CUSTOMER

 Patrick Beck

For Nicolai Beck, digitalization, automation, and AI are opportunities, not threats. For him, people remain at the center – as shapers of the future, supported by technology but never replaced by it. Sustainability is not a passing trend but a guiding principle that defines our decisions and actions.

” *EACH PROJECT, EACH
CLIENT AND EACH DAY BRINGS SOMETHING NEW.*

 Konstantin Beck

Konstantin Beck leads BKG with a clear focus on practical solutions. Customer orientation, personal consulting, and technical expertise define his daily work. Automation is applied where it makes sense, without losing sight of craftsmanship. For Patrick Beck, the future is an invitation to think further. He sees BECK as a platform for new ideas – even beyond its traditional fields in electronics. With a long-term perspective, entrepreneurial courage, and a strong sense of responsibility, he aims to prepare the way for the next generation, for the e-family, for a future that makes possible what today is only imaginable.

Congratulations to the 100th Anniversary of BECK Group! It is so amazing and respectable that a family holding industrial agency can have a 100-year history. As a Chinese Power Semiconductor start-up, Leapers has established a very strong cooperation with BECK Group for more than 3 years. I'm so pleased that our high-quality products, including IGBT and SiC modules, have been distributed to Germany and all over the Europe by our good partner BECK. I'm very impressed by BECK's expertise in the field of electronic power. I believe that we both sides will have more large-scale cooperation in the next 5-10 years.

Thanks & Outlook

OF THE FOURTH GENERATION

Every generation faces the challenges of its time and must overcome its own hurdles. In the face of today's megatrends of (de-) globalization and geopolitical shifts, it will be the task of the fourth managing generation to build supply chains that are both resilient and flexible – securing long-term advantages for our customers.

For 100 years, BECK has seen itself as a bridge between customers and suppliers – between Europe, Asia, and the world. Our goal remains to act sustainably and with a long-term perspective – not only through the careful use of resources, but also through reliable partnerships built on trust and equality. Such partnerships foster unity and strengthen the resilience of every link in the supply chain.

We will remain true to our values while at the same time exploring new paths. Looking ahead, we will continue to contribute with determination and foresight to the development of innovative products in the electronics industry.

Our heartfelt thanks go to all partners, customers, and especially our loyal employees – they are the backbone of the company and the driving force behind our success.

Building on the foundation laid by previous generations, the fourth generation of leadership looks to the future with determination and optimism.
